

Buchart Horn Restores Hotel Fauchere's Glamorous Past

Millionaires, movie stars, movers and shakers once called it home. Today, the Hotel Fauchere in Milford, PA has been restored to its former glory with the help of Buchart Horn restoration experts. Located on the Delaware River near the borders of New York and New Jersey the Hotel Fauchere has been an icon since the 1800s and was witness to the beginning of America's film industry. During the Silent Film era, Milford was the place to be, with many films shot on location.

Wealthy industrialists and the nation's political leaders used the Hotel Fauchere as their glamorous home away from home. Early hotel registers bore the signatures of President Theodore Roosevelt, industrialist and philanthropist Andrew Carnegie, silent film director D.W. Griffith and silent film star Mary Pickford then known as America's Sweetheart.

The Hotel Fauchere was constructed around 1880 and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The hotel has a rich culinary history and is once again becoming a culinary destination with fine dining on weekend evenings and casual dining seven days a week.

Buchart Horn provided complete engineering services along with architectural and historic preservation consultation, interior design, and acquisition of furnishings and materials to capture the ambiance of a bygone era in the hotel and restaurant.
